June 24.—The Republican convention completed its work in less than four hours. There had been a hard fight for the control of the state committee, there was every sign of harmony and enthusiasm.

Contested districts were in favor of the Dick candidates. The state committee showed that the state committee for Dick and a for Kurtz. Hanna was not only on the result, but all the were seeking admittance to the conference. Governor Bushnell not only accepted the committee before the convention, but by having friendly relations with Senator Hanna, but made a strong speech of acceptance.

Governor Bushnell declared, of the statements of the Democratic, I accept, there was a demonstration.

His speech was eloquent and forcible. He captured the convention by his oratory. He was most enthusiastically received and congratulated on his effort.

QUAY'S MOTION IS LOST

Senate Refuses to Adopt Ad Valorem Rates in Wool.

ALLEN'S SWEEPING DENIAL

The Nebraska Statesman Takes the First Opportunity to Publicly Deny a Statement About Bryan's Contribution.

Washington, June 24.—After a contest lasting throughout the day the senate completed the paragraphs of the wool schedule relating to raw wool and advanced into the features relating to manufactured woolen goods. The day was devoted largely to a discussion of the effect of tariff rates in the price of wool, and the speeches were on technical lines in the main.

At one point Mr. Hoar diverted the discussion by a reference to William J. Bryan's opposition to the tariff. This brought Senators Mantle and Allen and Stewart to the defense of Mr. Bryan. Mr. Teller was drawn into the controversy and in a few incisive remarks warned his former Republican associates that their hopes of prosperity from this bill would be blasted.

Mr. Quay made a strong effort to have the house ad valorem rates on third class wool adopted, but he was defeated—19 to 41.

The committee rates were then agreed to, viz: Four cents per pound on third class wool valued at 10 cents or less per pound, and 7 cents per pound on third class wool valued above 10 cents per pound. The schedule was completed up to paragraph 364, relating to cloths, knit fabrics, etc.

Early in the day Mr. Allen (Pop., Neb.), rising to a question of personal privileges, made a sweeping denial of published charges that William J. Bryan had contributed $1,500 to the Populist cause in order to effect fusion.

THE McCORD CLAIM.

State Department Has Decided to Press the Peruvian Government.

Washington, June 24.—The state department has resolved to again press the McCord claim upon the Peruvian government and try to bring it to a settlement. The object sought is to secure an indemnity of $50,000 for the ill treatment of McCord, who was an American consular agent at Arequipa, and also connected with a railroad company in Peru.

During a revolution McCord was seized and imprisoned and sentenced to be shot by the revolutionary element that afterward obtained control of the government. The state department has pressed the case at intervals upon the Peruvian government without avail, and Secretary Olney last February directed Minister MacKenzie to make a peremptory demand for a settlement. There has been no correspondence on the subject since.

To Annex Hawaii.

Washington, June 24.—Senator Morgan introduced a bill for the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands. The bill provides that the islands shall become a territory of the United States, in accordance with the terms of the recently negotiated treaty. The date set for the extension of the law of this country over the islands is March 4, 1898, but it is specifically provided that they may be put in force at an earlier day if congress so directs. It is also directed that the five commissioners provided for by the treaty to make recommendations to congress in matters pertaining to Hawaii shall be confirmed by the senate. The bill appropriates $1,000,000 for the execution of its provisions. Out of this sum the interest on the Hawaiian debt is to be paid, but provision for the payment of the principal of this debt is deferred.

Brigadier General.

Washington, June 24.—Brigadier General Anson Mills, formerly colonel of the Third cavalry and now stationed at El Paso, Tex., has been retired on his own application under the 40 year service clause. He will continue, however, to serve as a member of the Mexican boundary commission until the completion of that work. The vacancy caused by his retirement will be filled by the promotion to brigadier general of Colonel Caleb H. Carlton, now in command of the Eighth cavalry at Fort Meade. In the expected event of his confirmation he, too, will be retired and Colonel R. C. Merriam of the First infantry will be advanced to the grade of brigadier general.

Reply to Japan.

Washington, June 24.—The state department has practically completed its reply to the Japanese government against the annexation treaty, but has not yet delivered it. The reply is understood to be dignified in tone—a strong legal defense of our position, which without any sense abating our claims, does not disdain to support them by much citation of precedent and international law.

Knows of No Suit.

Washington, June 24.—In response to a resolution of inquiry from the senate in regard to the foreclosure proceedings against the Union Pacific road, the attorney general says he knows of no suit to procure a judicial declaration of the forfeiture of the rights, privileges, franchises, etc., of the Pacific railroad companies, based upon section 11 of the act of 1875 or otherwise.

About Angell's Departure.

Washington, June 24. Dr. Angell, the newly appointed minister to Turkey, has notified the state department that he will sail from New York on July 17 for his post, stopping in London en route to confer with Mr. Turrell, the retiring minister.

A BOLT RESULTS.

Middle-of-the-Road Populists Withdraw From Iowa Convention.

Des Moines, June 24.—The Democratic state convention adjourned during the evening, having completed its work. The two allied conventions, the silver Republicans and Populists, completed their work slightly in advance. The three factions were, after much controversy, able to agree on one platform, with free silver as the main idea, and one ticket, composed of two Democrats, two silver Republicans and one Populist. The ticket will be placed on the official ballot under the name "Democratic."

When this became known there was a split in the Populist convention, the middle-of-the-road faction under the leadership of A. W. C. Weeks, walking out. The seceders numbered probably 100 of the delegates.

General J. B. Weaver's faction remained with the Democrats, whereupon he was bitterly denounced. But for this rupture the union of all the free silver forces would have been complete.

The ticket is composed as follows: Governor, F. R. White, Democrat, Keokuk county; lieutenant governor, B. A. Plummer, silver Republican, Winnebago county; judge of the supreme court, L. G. Kiene, Democrat for Bryan; Polk county; railroad commissioner, S. B. Grain, Populist, Dallas county; superintendent of instruction, G. F. Rhinehart, silver Republican, Jasper county.

Mr. White, the candidate for governor, was formerly a member of congress from the Sixth district. He was defeated for re-election last year by John F. Lacey. He is an out and out free silver man and has an established reputation as a good campaigner.

Rescued of Fugitive.

Denver, June 24.—C. Fagenbush, who has been arrested in New York on a charge of forgery, is alleged to be the principal member of a gang of swindlers whose operations in Denver, it is estimated, netted $50,000.

Yale Defeated.

Cambridge, Mass., June 24.—Yale lost the ball game with Harvard by a score of 7 to 5, before the largest crowd which has assembled on Holmes field in years.

BIG BLAZE IN NEW YORK

Seven Story Building Next to a Schoolhouse Burns.

CHILDREN KEPT IN ORDER

Two Hundred and Fifty Pupils Are Marched into the Main Room, Where "America" Is Sung in Chorus.

New York, June 21.—Fire that caused loss of $250,000 and called out most of the firemen in the city, broke out in the large 7-story building at the northeast corner of Greenwich and Laight streets. The interior of the building was destroyed. The first floor and basements were occupied by the wholesale wine and liquor firm of B. Dreyfus & Company, and from the second floor to the roof R. E. Ditz & Company carried on the manufacture of metal lamps, lanterns, oil and gas stoves. This concern has a branch in Chicago.

Adjoining the building on the west is the United States bonded warehouse of Walker & Williams.

Hundreds of barrels of spirits and whisky are stored in the warehouse and the firemen kept their attention toward this building and prevented its catching fire.

How the fire started is not known. More than 100 women and girls were gotten safely out of the building.

The primary school is just back of the burned building. Two hundred and fifty little scholars were in the school when the fire broke out. The scholars were marched into the main room where the principal kept them quiet for a time by telling them stories. The whistling of the engines and ringing of bells was finally too much for them and they became uneasy. Then they were ordered to rise and sing "America." They drowned the noise made by the firemen.

It was said that the fire had its origin in an overheated gas stove, but the report could not be confirmed.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS

Select Atlanta as the Place for the Next Reunion.

Nashville, June 24.—Atlanta gets the next reunion of the Confederate veterans. At the business meeting it was voted to meet in Atlanta next year.

The unanimous refusal of the association to allow General John B. Gordon to retire as commander-in-chief had put an end to possible difficulties.

and entanglements and paved the way for a speedy disposition of the remaining business.

A resolution commendatory of the reign of Queen Victoria was voted down and the resolution of praise for the queen's jubilee was defeated.

The business matters are all disposed of and now the old Confederates and their friends will devote themselves to social recreations. There are 15,000 of the old soldiers in attendance.

Official badges have been issued to more than 12,000, and regularly delegated attendants from camps and bivouacs number, according to official reports, more than 8,000. There never before has been so large a gathering in this city. Hotels are jammed, business houses are full, temporary lodging places are crowded.

Iron Trade Better.

Chicago, June 24.—In the west pig iron still attracts the greatest attention in the iron and steel markets. Business has so expanded that local producers have withdrawn special offers, if any were made, and are firm at quotations of $10.25 for No. 2 foundry. The volume of trade was large.

Arrested For Wife Beating.

Chicago, June 24.—E. J. Ratcliffe, the actor, was arrested on a telegram from New York, charged with wife-beating. Ratcliffe's wife is said to be in a critical condition as the result of his abuse of her.

the forbearance of their constituents, and their turning down is but a natural sequence—one which showed political observers predicted with an absolute assurance that the prediction would be verified.

CALAMITY HOWLERS.

Republicans Forced to Admit That Times Are Growing Harder.

The American Protective Tariff League may be regarded as the very citadel of Republicanism. Its president is secretary of the interior in the McKinley administration, and in the list of its members are to be found very many of the leading Republicans of the east. Its utterances are not only authoritative, but may fairly be regarded as oracular. The league just now, as a matter of course, is extremely eager for the passage of the Dingley bill, and it has sent out an official circular to the editors of Republican newspapers throughout the country asking them to assist in inaugurating "a post-leader campaign telling United States senators the wishes of the people in favor of immediate tariff legislation." In this circular the league says:

"Times are growing harder every day. We can have no prosperity until protection is embodied in our laws."

Here is a distinct, authoritative and official (for the president of the league is McKinley's secretary of the interior) admission not only that the promised prosperity has not come, but that "times are growing harder every day." Here also is the admission that the Republicans have repudiated their campaign lies to the effect that the election of McKinley and the triumph of "sound money" would bring prosperity and that their present claim is "we can have no prosperity until protection is embodied in our laws."

It would be a hard enough task to humbug the people into the belief that prosperity has come, even if it were receiving the assistance of all the other party organs and agencies. But with the leading lights of the Republican party joining the ranks of the "calamity howlers" and declaring that "times are growing harder every day" and that "worse times can never come than those now existing," the task is hopeless.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

HAVE WE PROSPERITY?

Do Business Conditions Fulfill the Republican Promises?

The Walling St. Louis Globe-Democrat has been driven to the alternative of admitting that its campaign prophecies of a business revival immediately after the election of McKinley were "absurd" and "ridiculous" or of claiming that its prophecies have been fulfilled and that prosperity has come. In choosing the latter alternative it seems to us to have made an egregious blunder. Certainly it has chosen the alternative that will prove most damaging to its party.

If the Globe-Democrat and other McKinley organs admit that the business conditions prevailing now are the prosperity they promised during the campaign, and of which McKinley was to be the advance agent, the Democrats will be quite willing to rest their case on this. It will not be necessary for them to do any campaigning either in 1898 or 1900. It will be sufficient for them to hold conventions and nominate candidates. Without effort on their part their candidates will be elected by majorities so sweeping that it will be like the old race in which Eclipse was first and the rest nowhere.

The people know that they were deceived in the last campaign. They are beginning to suspect that they were humbugged. If the Globe-Democrat and other Republican spokesmen will go on asserting that the "prosperity" we are now having is the prosperity that was promised before the election, the people will no longer doubt that they were deliberately humbugged and will in due time make their indignation effective.

ANOTHER BOND ISSUE.

The London Times Predicts That a Loan Will Soon Be Needed.

The London Times, commenting editorially in a rather sarcastic vein upon Secretary Gage's recent declarations as to the currency, says:

"Six months have passed since Mr. McKinley was elected, yet nothing has been done to redeem the pledges to which the business world attached the chief importance. The uneasiness of the business community seems to have made itself felt in official circles, with the result that we have Mr. Gage's statements, which are not much in themselves, but have a soothing effect on Wall Street."

"The Wolcott bimetallic mission is nothing but a device for postponing unwelcome decisions. To outside observers the government of the United States appears to be running grave risks with a wonderfully light heart. It will not need a long continued drain of gold to bring the American treasury face to face with the necessity of another loan."

Hypocrisy Won't Do.

President McKinley had John W. Wadsworth and that gentleman's recent speech in mind when he said in Philadelphia recently that the advent of the much promised era of prosperity "will not be promoted by recrimination." This is undoubtedly true, but so also is the statement that it will not come through the policy of hypocrisy and evasion which the Republican administration is pursuing.—Exchange.

AMONG THE RAILROADS.

Articles of association of the Toledo & Milwaukee Railroad Company, capitalized at $1,500,000, have been filed with the secretary of state. The incorporators are the Lima, O., people who are identified with the Detroit & Lima Northern, and H. C. Smith, of Adrian. The new road is to furnish the Lima Northern an outlet to Lake Michigan. The articles provide for 150 miles of road, from a point where the Lima road crosses the Michigan state line, through Monroe, Lenawee, Hillsdale, Jackson, Barry and Allegan counties to Lake Michigan, at or near Holland. Henry C. Smith is the only Michigan director of the new company. Officers will be elected at Lima this week. It will only be necessary to build about 23 miles of road from Holland to the lake, after extending the C. J. & M. from Allegan to Holland. It has not been decided yet whether the extension of the Detroit & Lima Northern from Tecumseh to Detroit will be by way of Ann Arbor or Plymouth.—Adrian Times.

Two tracks, intended for passenger trains, will come up to the east end of the depot the other passing along the west side of the depot. The space between the tracks from the depot to Jackson street will be platformed and well shedded to afford good protection.

Something to Know.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed when the languid, exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness and yield to Electric Bitters. 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at H. F. Vorkamp's Drug Store, n. e. cor. Main and North sts.

The quick relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by Melville, the druggist, old postoffice corner; C. W. Heister, 58 public square.

JUDGE S. M. HUNTER.

Licking County's Candidate For Governor.

HAS BEEN STRONGLY INDORSED.

He is bold on the Silver Question, and Says Tariff Can Not Bring Good Times. He Favors the Indorsement of the Chicago Platform in Its Entirety—How He Stands at Home.

Columbus, O., June 23.—Preparations for the Democratic state convention to be held in this city June 29 are about complete, and arrangements for taking care of all have been looked after with a view to making their stay so pleasant that they will want to come again.

No pains have been spared to provide for the comfort of all, but especial attention has been given to arrangements for the entertainment of visiting newspaper men, who are expected here in great abundance.

Among the distinguished Democrats who who aspire to the standard bearership of their party is Judge S. M. Hunter of Newark, who was indorsed by the Licking county Democratic convention as follows:

Resolved, That we declare our unqualified and hearty indorsement of the candidacy of governor of Ohio of Judge S. M. Hunter, who has been from the very outset one of the states foremost and ablest champions of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and who possesses the years from 1852 to the campaign of 1896 he was for the people's money. There is no man who has been a more consistent friend of silver. He represents all that democracy in the coming struggle can ask for and his life, full of service to his party, testifies to his worthiness. He will make an aggressive candidate and wage just the sort of a campaign necessary to insure success this fall.

Such is Licking county's candidate for governor. A man in the full prime of a vigorous manhood, in the full enjoyment of a magnificent intellect. A man of energy and ability, of the highest integrity and of unflinching courage. A man who will be true to his party because he will be true to himself.

The judge's position on the leading political issues of the day is set forth in the following interview published in the Cincinnati Enquirer:

Newark, O., June 5.—Judge Samuel M. Hunter of this city is a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Speaking to an Enquirer correspondent today of the situation, Judge Hunter said:

"Although the prospects seem very bright for a Democratic victory this fall, our party should not be led into inactivity by overconfidence. The full strength of the present national administration will be exerted to make the president's own state Republican this year, as it has been for so long, and the Democracy has far from an easy fight upon its hands."

"Are you a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination?"

"Yes; I am a candidate, and I have

JUDGE SAMUEL M. HUNTER.

qualifications that eminently fit him for making a brilliant campaign before the people, and for filling the gubernatorial chair in a manner that will reflect credit upon himself and the judgment of the people.

Commenting editorially upon the judge's candidacy the Newark Daily Advocate says:

"The Licking county Democrat can always be relied upon to do the right thing at the right time. Licking's unfaltering Democracy again emphasized this fact by indorsing amidst cheers and waving of flags the candidacy of her favorite son—Judge S. M. Hunter, for governor of Ohio. To the Licking county Democrat who understands the needs of the hour, Judge Hunter is the personification of all that Democracy at this time stands for. He has always been true to the faith that is in him. He has stood by the party from the day he cast his first vote. He has worked in season and out—in seed time and in harvest—for the success of Democratic principles and the triumph of Democracy's cause. No night was too dark, no road was too rough to deter Judge Hunter from going into any section of the county to keep alive party spirit and party enthusiasm. And to him and to his brilliant efforts on the stump—more than to any other living man—Licking county owes its enviable title of being one of the banner Democratic counties of the state."

"There is no need to mention to the Licking county citizen—irrespective of politics—his eminent qualifications for the high office. He was a soldier when the country was in peril. There was none better nor braver in all the gallant thousands who followed the flag. His record as a soldier, like his record as a Democrat, stands without a flaw."

"The war over, he began the practice of the law. Those sturdy, unflinching, courageous qualities which made him an exemplary soldier combined with a brilliant mind and tireless industry, soon pushed him to the front in his profession. Democracy then as now recognized in him a leader and strove to do him honor. He was common pleas judge for 10 years and no abler nor fairer judge occupied the bench. In every position to which he was called as in every occupation he has undertaken, he never failed by his demeanor and by the performance of his duties to honor those who honored him."

"He was a pioneer in the cause of free silver. One of the first to make demand for the free and unlimited coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1. In all reason to feel that my prospects are good. I do not believe, however, that any one will have a 'sure thing' in the matter of the nomination until the convention is actually in session and weighs the problem for itself. There seems to be a disposition among the leaders of the party to give every gubernatorial candidate a fair chance, and I do not believe that they will be subjected to any influence except those of personal popularity and logical fitness for the honor."

"What about the issues of the campaign?"

"The silver question, of course, will be paramount. There can be no doubt that the great mass of the people are now with the Democratic party on the silver issue. The public now realizes that it alone involves a return of prosperity. The tariff can not bring us good times. The Dingley bill, at the best, will be a failure in so far as what was intended when it was introduced. But, even if it were to be enacted into law in the form which President McKinley and Mr. Dingley desire, it would not restore prosperity."

"Suppose it is true that manufacturing interests would be encouraged by the passage of a high tariff bill, what would be the good of that if the people have no money with which to purchase the products of the factories? Just as soon as we have free coinage of silver we will have better times. There will be an end of the contraction of the currency and the products of labor will have a market. In the formulation of our platform we should indorse that of the Chicago convention. We should not forget that there are state issues."

"The extravagance and the scandal which have surrounded the state institutions under the present administration should be topics of discussion in our platform. Governor Bushnell made great promises of a business administration, saying that he was a business man and would give the people a state government based upon commercial methods."

"He has utterly failed in this, and has allowed the politicians to run riot over any good resolutions he may have made. The heavy rate of local taxation should be another feature of the platform. I think we will have one of the largest conventions in Columbus in the history of the party. Ever since I was indorsed by the Democracy of my county I have been receiving many letters from friends in every section of the state, giving me much encouragement in my candidacy for the gubernatorial nomination."

BORROWING A MATCH.

It Is Not Always a Simple Matter, as This Story Shows.

You might think that borrowing a match in the street is a simple thing. But any man who has ever tried it will assure you that it is not and will be prepared to swear to the truth of my experience of the other evening.

I was standing at the corner of a street with a cigar that I wanted to light. I had no match. I waited till a decent, ordinary looking man came along. Then I said:

"Excuse me, but could you oblige me with the loan of a match?"

The man stopped short at once.

"A match?" he said. "Certainly."

Then he unbuttoned his overcoat and put his hand in the pocket of his waistcoat.

"I know I have one," he went on, "and I'd almost swear it's in the bottom pocket—or, hold on, though, it may be in the top—just wait till I put these parcels down."

"Oh, don't trouble," I said; "it's really of no consequence."

"Oh, it's no trouble. I'll have it in a minute. I know there must be one in here somewhere"—he was digging his fingers into his pockets as he spoke—"but you see this isn't the waistcoat I generally"—

I saw that the man was getting excited about it.

"Well, never mind," I protested.

"If that isn't the waistcoat that you generally—why, it doesn't matter."

"Hold on now! Hold on!" the man said. "I've got one of the cursed things in here somewhere. It must be in with my watch. No, it's not there either. Wait till I try in my coat. If that confounded tailor knew enough to make a pocket so that a man could get at it!"

He was getting pretty well worked up now. He had thrown down his walking stick and was plunging at his pockets with his teeth set.

"It's that cursed boy of mine," he hissed. "This comes of his interfering with my pockets. By gad, won't I warn him up when I get home? I wonder if it's in my hip pocket? You just hold up the tail of my overcoat a second till I"—

"No, no," I protested again. "Please don't take all the trouble. It really doesn't matter. I'm sure you needn't take off your overcoat, and, oh, pray, don't throw away your letters and things like that and tear out your pockets by the roots! Please, please, don't trample on your overcoat and put your feet through the parcels. I do so hate to hear you swearing at your little boy with that peculiar whine in your voice. Don't—please don't tear your clothes so savagely."

Suddenly the man gave a grunt of exultation and drew his hand up from inside the lining of his coat.

"I've got it," he cried. "Here you are!" Then he brought it out under the light.

It was a toothpick! Yielding to the impulse of the moment, I pushed him under the wheels of a tram car and ran.—Illustrated Bits.

Chinese Sailors and the Fire Drill.

In St. Nicholas is an article by Lieutenant John M. Ellicott, U. S. N., on "What Is Told by the Bell," in the course of which he relates the following anecdote:

On a certain man-of-war on the Pacific station a few years ago the officers had Chinese servants, and although they could scarcely speak a word of English they were quick to learn what was shown to them, and soon did like clockwork the fire drill with buckets. One day there was a real fire. Volumes of smoke poured up from the forehold, and it took several streams of water nearly an hour to put out the flames. When the fire was under control, some one thought of the Chinamen, and, behold, they were, ranged in line and in plain sight of the smoking hatchway, rapidly passing their buckets along, but emptying them over the ship's side, as they had been taught to do!

Olivier de Penne.

The late Olivier de Penne, the French painter of animals and hunting scenes, who died at the age of 65, was a man of extraordinary energy and spent much of his time in painting, hunting and lavish entertainment of his neighbors. For many years he was the mainspring of gaiety at Barbizon, Mariotte, Grez and Montigny, all of them artists' villages. His house was open at all hours to all painters, and he himself was equally ready for serious talk, festivity, dancing or dueling. He appears in Robert Louis Stevenson's short essays on Fontainebleau. He is the original of that lively portrait in "Forest Notes" which depicts "the great, the famous, the redoubtable Blank."

The Juvenile Witness.

The late Mr. Isaac Butt, Q. C., M. P., was fond of relating two answers which he himself heard given to the late Chief Justice Leffroy, lord chief justice of Ireland, by children. In the first instance a little boy, whose testimony was of importance in a case of riot between Protestants and Catholics, was asked what would happen to him if he did not tell the truth. "When I die, sir," was the reply. "I should go where the Catholics go." On a similar question being put to an intelligent little girl, she replied, after a pause, "I suppose I should not get my expenses."—Westminster Gazette.

A Characteristic Reply.

The incurability of General Walker, late president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was above all suspicion. A characteristic anecdote is told of him by J. J. Spencer in The Review of Reviews:

At one time, when General Walker held a government position, a place shared in a measure by another, he was approached with the suggestion that, since the whole department was under their control, by working in harmony they could have whatever they desired. "I have no desires," said General Walker.

"But, general," said his conjurer, "do you not see that we can push forward our friends and relatives into good places?"

"I have no friends," was the reply.

"I have been wondering," said Champion Abdul Hamid to his grand vizier, "whether we had better follow the example of our fellow champion Fitzsimmons and go on the stage."

"Twenty thousand candle power are light of the universe," replied the vizier, "I fear you would be unable to square the circles. I have a better plan. We can force the Greeks to pay well for the show we have given them."

A WHITE RED SQUIRREL.

A Queen Little Pet Belonging to Some New Jersey Girl.

Dr. Emily G. Hunt, in St. Nicholas, describes the following interesting pet:

Some girl cousins of mine living in New Jersey have an odd pet. It is a white red squirrel.

You have all seen red squirrels—"chickarees" they call them, from the sounds of their chattering and scolding as they drop nutshells on your head or run down a tree trunk by fits and starts, giving a little "Click!" with each forward rush, while they watch you sharply.

Our little pet is like one of these in every way except that he is snowy white, that the cleanest tablecloth looks dingy compared to him.

He was born in a cranberry bog. Some men cutting brush there saw two strange little animals, one white, the other cream colored. They caught this white one by throwing a goat over him, but the creamy squirrel ran away.

When the captive was brought home all admired him greatly, for he was, as you may imagine, a very beautiful little creature, with his long, bushy tail and bright woodland tricks.

But there is really one strange thing about him—his eyes are not red or pink, as are those of most white animals, but they are as black as any squirrel's could be. So my girl cousins call him Beads.

When an animal belonging to a species commonly dark in color is born white instead, it is called an albino. You have all seen albino rabbits and rats and mice. Their eyes are pink. So that Beads is really a most uncommon fellow—a snowy squirrel with jet black eyes.

Albino or not, he is at any rate a most winning little pet, and there is no end to his pretty ways. As a cat and a kitten live with the same family, he has to be kept in a squirrel cage, but he is let out a long time each day. Then Beads is quite happy. He climbs up the back of the chair and nibbles the hair of the person seated in it, gnaws the flowers on the window sill, rushes up the stems of the callas and scratches in the earth until it flies on all sides. He will rub his head and face and all his body in the earth until his clean, white dress is a sight to be held. After that he hops to the floor and rubs his face carefully upon the carpet.

He loves to retire to a corner or under a piece of furniture for his toilet, going in gray and coming out white. If you peep and watch him it is great fun, for he scrubs and combs himself with his paws in the mostest way, washes his face just as a cat does and then takes his big tail in his paws and uses it for a towel. One often hears people wonder why squirrels have such big tails. All know that they are useful as balancing poles and blankets and are charming as ornaments, but not many are in Beads' secret of their usefulness as towels.

Good Suggestion.

It would be well for many of the people who are given to worrying to pay heed to a story of Cromwell's time said to be absolutely true.

The protector was sending a special envoy to Sweden in the person of Bushrod Whitelock, a most devout man, but one of an extremely nervous, anxious temperament. At the ambassador was about to embark on his journey, he was detained at Harwich by a storm. He was so troubled with the affairs of the nation that he tossed, turned and groined in his bed, unable to get to sleep.

At last his confidential servant, who had won Whitelock's respect and confidence through his faithful and good sense on many a trying occasion, ventured to say, "Pray, sir, will you give me leave to ask you a question?"

"Certainly," was the answer. "Do you think that God governed the world very well before you came into it?"

"Undoubtedly I do," said Whitelock. "And," continued the servant, "do you not think he will govern it quite as well when you are gone out of it?"

"To be sure he will," responded the master promptly.

"Then, sir, excuse me, but may you not trust him to govern it the little while you are to live in it?"

Whitelock made no reply to this pertinent question, but he turned over and was soon asleep, and on his return he repeated the story of this bit of advice with much appreciation. Youth's Companion.

A Sympathetic Judge.

"I make whisky," said the moon shiner, "to make shoes for my little children."

The judge seemed touched, for he had children of his own. "I sympathize with you," he said, "and I am going to send you to the Ohio penitentiary where you can follow the shoe business for two years!"—Atlanta Constitution.

POE AND HIS CRITICS.

The Fierce Controversy in Which the Author Was Charged With Plagiarism.

An interesting article in The Forum by Mr. Joel Benton will shed a new light on the almost forgotten Chivers Poe controversy of 50 years ago. Thomas Holley Chivers was a minor poet somewhat in vogue half a century ago. Of his poetry Mr. Benton says that "it is mainly trash. Now and then however, he struck a note quite above this dead and wide pervading commonplace, and whenever he did the verses brought forth were apt to suggest the mechanism and flavor of Poe. He not only said at various times that Poe had borrowed largely from him, but he put the transaction in much bolder terms. The charge of flagrant plagiarism of himself by Poe, in respect even of 'The Raven' and 'Annabel Lee,' was not withheld, but was violently advanced by Chivers. Nor was he alone in making this charge. Some of his friends took it up and repeated it with a vehemence and an ability worthy of a most sacred cause. A few snatches from some of Chivers' best poems are given, most of which antedate Poe's period of literary activity, and, as Mr. Benton remarks, 'not a few have the Poe affluence and melody so strongly inherent in them that even the noncritical reader could not mistake their related quality.' It seems that in the latter part of 1853 Chivers, under a nom de plume in The Waverley Magazine, charged Poe with flagrant plagiarism. Chivers quotes from his own book, 'The Lost Pleiad,' the following lines from the poem 'To Allegra In Heaven,' published a few years before 'The Raven' appeared, which, he asserts, 'show the intelligent reader the true and only source from which Poe obtained his style' in that poem:

Holy angels now are bending to receive thy
Up to heaven to joys unending and to bliss
Which is divine.
While thy pale, cold form is fading under Death's dark wings now shading
Thee with gloom which is pervading this poor
Broken heart of mine.
And as God doth lift the spirit up to heaven
There to inherit
Those rewards which it doth merit, such as None has repaid before.
Thy dear father will tomorrow lay thy body
With deep sorrow
In the grave which is so narrow, there to rest
Forever more.

Thereupon a fierce controversy was waged, and for months the relative merits of the question were discussed with great vehemence by a number of writers. Some upheld the charge made by Chivers, while others belittled his assumption and enthroned Poe on the pinnacle of poetic genius. Mr. Benton reviews the whole controversy, but as to what conclusion can be deduced from the facts he cites, Mr. Benton very naively remarks that "each reader will be certain to make his own. No critic will doubt that to Poe belonged the wonderful magic and mastery of this species of song. If to him who says a thing best the thing belongs, no one will hesitate to decide that Poe is entitled to the bays which crown him. It is a fact that, with all the contemporary airing of the subject, it is Poe's celebrity and not Chivers' that remains. The finer instinct and touch are what the world takes account of. Chivers, except at rare intervals, did not approach near enough to the true altitude. He put no boundary between what was grotesque and what was inspired. He was too short-breathed to stay poised on the heights and was but accidentally poetic."

Insects Brought In a Plant's Leaves.

There is a quaint plant, and a very pretty one, quite common in the northern states, that grows in peat bogs. It has large flowers with an odd, umbrella-like shield in the center. The shape of this has given it the name of sidesaddle flower, but it does not look very much like a sidesaddle. The most familiar name for the plant is pitcher plant, and it is sometimes called huntsman's cup or purple trumpet leaf.

This pitcher plant has leaves shaped like open cups, that stand up from the ground in a cluster. They are generally about half full of rain-water, in which many insects are drowned. It is probable that these serve as food for the plant. The pitchers are gayly colored—green with dark red or purple veining and sometimes purple all over.—Thomas H. Kearney, Jr., in St. Nicholas.

Family Ties.

"I presume," said the talkative man to his seatmate in the railway train, "from your manner and conversation that you have family ties."

"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton. "I suppose you might as well call 'em that. I buy 'em for myself, but my wife and the girls all wear 'em whenever they feel like it."—Washington Star.

COULD TALK ABOUT FLIES.

A Dull Poet Who Proved That He Was Not a Fool.

One of the speakers at a banquet dwelt a some length upon a man's natural aptitude to the vocation in life he pursued, and attributed as a result of so many failures the fact that a majority of mankind were following vocations not in bent with their natural inclinations. He told an interesting story illustrating his meaning from one of his schoolboy recollections as follows:

"At my first school there was a boy to whom the teacher could not succeed in imparting the simplest rules of elementary knowledge. Try as she might her efforts were failures. Her patience, after exhaustless trials, turned to despair. One day when he seemed duller than usual she sent him from the recitation bench to his seat with a severe reprimand, promising to recommend his dismissal to the trustees.

"Shortly afterward she observed him bending over some pursuit at his desk. His eyes were lighted with an expression that seemed inspiration. Anxious to know the cause of this almost miraculous transformation from sloth that was sluggish to activity that was life, she passed down the aisle by his desk on some pretext that would not disturb him, and found the cause of his glowing study to be the examination of a fly which he had caught and was examining, having dissected it into parts. The truth dawned upon the teacher. The boy's mind ran to entomology. He was a born naturalist.

"The teacher said nothing, but that afternoon called up the entire class for general recitation. The boy's appearance was as dull as ever. 'Boys,' said the teacher, addressing the entire school, 'I want to see how far your general powers of observation on trivial subjects go. For instance, you have all seen thousands of flies. Now, I want each one of you to tell me his impressions of a fly.' Beyond the fact that a fly was a fly and had two wings, not one of the school could say anything further. At the first mention of the subject the dull boy was all aglow. He held up his hand and snapped his fingers. He realized his superiority. It was his day. He told of the fly from a general and analytical standpoint, its interior and exterior construction, its habits, its food, its generation and its propensities. The rest of the school sat astonished. The boy went on and launched into a general description of bugs and insects he had caught in the woods.

"From that day the teacher encouraged his peculiar aptitude and troubled him no more with the rules of grammar and arithmetic. She went into the woods with him and helped in his studies of nature. She brought the attention of the school trustees to his case, and, to make a long story short, he was sent to Europe for study. In Leipzig he was made moderator of the Natural Conservatory of Science. He held for a time an important position in the Smithsonian at Washington, and he is now in Paris, one of the leading entomologists of the world."—Washington Post.

Blast For the Bessemer Converters.

Ten engines of 500 horsepower are each one as big as the engine in a street car power house with wheels four times the diameter of a man's height, beams like girders of a bridge, rising so high that the oilers and inspectors use an iron gallery to get to the upper portions. These engines blow the air into the stoves and thence to the blast furnaces with a force equivalent to 1,872 pounds to the square foot. Some idea may be gained of the power of this artificial hurricane by the fact that the tornado that destroyed a portion of St. Louis exerted a force of only 16 pounds to the square foot. These blowing engines, which were supplied by the Cuyahoga works of Cleveland, produce a blast 117 times greater than a destructive cyclone. The blast which they drive into the bessemer converters keeps 12 tons of molten iron suspended in the air until the process is completed and the converters are turned.—Modern Machinery.

At a London Reception.

A London reception is bright and amusing. Every one is asked, and at most every one goes. In the early part of the evening statesmen, diplomats and older people are in the majority; at 11 o'clock, those who have been to the play arrive, and a little later the actors themselves. From the staircase people can best be seen. It is always crowded by those who are on their way to pay respects to the hostess in the hall above, and by those who have already done so and are on their way down to the supper room. Above and below a dense crowd elbow and talk around and through you; every one has a rotary motion, like the turret on a monitor. You are slowly twisted past your hostess and through the parlors, and then finally back to the staircase, down which you can go as slowly as you please.—C. D. Gibson in Scribner's.

THE MURDERER

Behaved Strangely for a Month Before the Murder.

WITNESSES FOR DEFENSE

State That He Became Very Dependent—Evidence Not Very Important as to the Alleged Insanity of His Relative.

Some important, though not expert, witnesses were examined to behalf of the defense in the Hawk murder case, this morning. The testimony concerning the alleged insanity of some of Hawk's relatives has so far been of but little importance, especially that relating to the alleged insanity of Louis Stoodt, of Beaver Dam, but the testimony of the defendant's friends as to his condition and behavior just prior to the time of the shooting, may be considered of considerable importance. The witnesses say that Clint Hawk was, some time prior to the tragedy, a cheerful, jolly and a witty young man, friendly to all and always willing and obliging, but that within a few weeks of the murder a change came over him; he became melancholy and absent minded and behaved very strangely and was wholly unlike his former self.

During the direct examination of Arthur Hawk, brother of the defendant, yesterday afternoon, the witness stated that some time he found his mother weeping. That the defendant witnessed these scenes. The defendant and his father were always friendly toward each other. Witness said that he lived with his great grandmother, Mrs. Dorcas Murray, during the summer months, prior to the time he came to Lima. He stated that Mrs. Murray could not be left alone, because she had lost her mind. Said when she saw anyone she would go after them. If she got hold of a poker or stick of wood she would rather throw it at some one than lay it down.

CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Witness said he did not know the age of his great grandmother, Mrs. Murray. She was in the seventies or eighties. Said she wasn't 94. Mrs. Murray was the witness's great grandmother on his father's side. Witness said his mother complained a great deal to his father. Witness remembered having met J. D. Ward on the day that his father died. Prosecuting attorney said: "Did you not say to Mr. Ward that day, 'that the old man did not get a d—bit more than he deserved and if I had been there Monday night I would have been in it instead of my brother, but my brother had the sand to do it and by God you can't find a jury in Allen county to convict him'?"

"I don't think I did say that. Duke Ward don't like me very well." Did say something about the old man not getting a d—bit more than he deserved. That was before the father died; when witness did not think it was so serious. Witness remembered meeting a at the police station on the night of the shooting and of saying something to him about not being surprised when he heard of the shooting; that he was expecting something and that if he had known what his brother was going to do with the revolver he would not have loaned it to him. Witness said that he told Clint to go and get the revolver on Monday of the week before the shooting.

WILLIAM MCGRIFFY.

William McGrieffy, telegraph operator at the Penn. depot, stated that he saw Clint Hawk at the telegraph office over the Penn. passenger station on the night of the shooting. Hawk asked witness who lived in the house next to the railroad on the east side of the Union street tunnel. Witness told Hawk that the house was occupied by Fanny Watkins and that the house was reputed to be one of ill fame. Hawk's face was drawn after he received this information. He then went down stairs. Did not hear the shooting.

MRS. ARTHUR HAWK.

Mrs. Hawk said that Clint Hawk came to her house and asked for the revolver. Said he was going into the country on a bicycle. The defendant came to her house on the morning of the day of the shooting and invited them to come over to a graphophone concert. Witness said Mrs. Hawk took in washing to help support the family. Did not know whether or not Frank Hawk helped support the family.

Upon cross-examination Mrs. Hawk stated that Clint gave a graphophone concert at the house about two weeks before the shooting. Did not know how many other times they had been given. Witness was at the Hawk residence when Frank Hawk came home after the shooting. Did not hear him say that Clint had threatened him.

MRS. MARY A. HAWK.

The gray-haired wife of the murdered man was the next witness called. She was sequestered upstairs to the court room by one of her sons, and walked slowly to the witness stand. She said she was 49 years of age, and was the mother of the prisoner and wife of the deceased. Said her husband worked in Lima while the family still lived in Lafayette. Her husband came home about once a week. Would come home on Sunday morning, and would walk back to Lima in the afternoon. Before he commenced working in Lima he supported the family comfortably. He usually gave her a dollar, dollar and a quarter, or sometimes a dollar and a half a week. Her sons Clarence and Clint helped her. Clint worked in a warehouse when he was 14 or 15 years of age. After the family came to Lima the husband did not give the witness $5 in two years to clothe the children. She stated that she never saw her husband with other women. She talked with Clint about her husband. Clint told her that his father was spending his money in places where he ought not to go. She said the boys helped pay the bills. Her husband did not pay any of the rent for two years. She stated that she had a great deal of trouble occasioned by the way she had to live, and frequently talked to her son Clint about the trouble. Clint took the part of the father helping to support her. She took in washing all last summer and winter. Clint and his father never quarreled. Clint was with the father more than the other children. She stated that her husband received letters during the last few months of his life. Clint and Clarence read the letters. They were signed "Friend Jack." The boys said they were written to a woman's hand. Witness said one of the letters spoke of the writer being broken up. Mrs. Hawk said the letters were destroyed by her husband. Said that Clint told her he was going to give the graphophone concert to make home more pleasant for his father. Clint told his father at the supper table that he was going to give the concert. When Clint came home after supper with the graphophone his father had just left. Clint took Clarence's wheel and left, saying he would be back in half an hour. Mrs. Hawk stated that a week or two before the shooting Clint told her he would talk to his father and try to get him to reform. She stated that the defendant's great grandmother, Mrs. Murray, would sometimes strike at persons. Witness stated that her father died at Lafayette eight years ago. She said that during the last years of his life he acted peculiar, would try to run away and did run away. He would talk silly about little things.

CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Mrs. Hawk said her father was 83 years old when he died. Said Clint did go to South America. Said he helped support the family all he could after he returned. Said her husband had his life insured for $1,000. She said that she did not remember of saying in the presence of James Hawk, "Clint done what he did for my sake, and my sake alone." Could not remember that she made such statement and by it refer to the money, the life insurance. Said she did not say that Clint only took her part. She stated that the trouble between she and her husband originated just before her last child was born. Said she always tried to do her duty as far as her husband was concerned. She did not quarrel with her husband almost every time he came home. Said she found a letter in her husband's clothes. Said the writer of the letter asked for money. Said the letter was from out west some place.

Judge Richie stated that the case would be resumed at 9 o'clock this morning instead of 9 o'clock, as heretofore, and adjournment was announced by the bailiff.

THIS MORNING

When court convened at 8 o'clock this morning Mrs. Hawk, widow of the murdered man, was recalled and her cross examination resumed. She said defendant's great-grandmother was about 86 years of age when she died; that her own father, Mr. Stoodt, was about 85 years of age, and Mrs. Homerick was about 83 years old and still living.

ARTHUR HAWK

was recalled for additional cross examination. Remembered his conversation with the TIMES-DEMOCRAT reporter at the police station, and remembered that at that time his brother, the defendant, called to him to "keep steady."

CLARENCE HAWK

was called by the defense. Was shown by Clint some letters from Evansville, Tenn., addressed to his father, Frank Hawk. The letters were headed "Dear Frank," and were signed "Friend Jack." The letters were written in a feminine hand. One letter said the present had been received; another letter said, watch the house, and that the writer was broke and needed money. Witness produced some bills advertising a graphophone concert. Identified some writing on the bottom of one of the bills as the defendant's. Said he got the bills from Clint's pockets.

The bills were offered in evidence by attorney Leland. Objection by Mr. Ridenour was overruled.

Witness said that Clint was to have distributed the bills in the country the day following the shooting. Witness also said that his mother and Clint were present when the letters from Evansville, Tenn., were handed to him; that his mother and Clint cried about the letters, and Clint said he would try to reform his father. Said he and Clint and their sister assisted in the support of the family, himself paying the rent and part of the grocery bills; that his mother did washing and helped to

THEY'RE HOT,

And Threaten to Call Another Convention.

THE FOLLOWERS OF JOEY B.

Feel That They Must Do Something to Distinguish Themselves or Surrender to the Lewis-Moulton-Hall-Rumbaugh Crowd.

The Foraker people who were so badly beaten at Toledo yesterday, and who brought nothing but defeat and plenty of it home with them, have not lost all hope of regaining their lost prestige. The recognition by the state convention yesterday of the delegation chosen at last Saturday's convention, establishes beyond a question the legitimacy of the convention which created the delegates. This recognition carries with it the legitimacy of the county central committee selected at the same county convention. So the Hanna-Lewis-Hall-Moulton combination claims, and their claims contain many elements of logic.

Now, along comes the Parmenter-Longworth-Gazette-Halfhill combination and say that the county committee—the old one, is still in authority, and they are seriously considering the advisability of calling a county convention to place in nomination a county ticket and select a new county central committee. As last Saturday's committee contained no Foraker representation, so would the committee selected by a convention called by the Forakerites be composed entirely of adherents of the senior senator from Ohio.

They claim that it is necessary to have control of the committee in order to gain the proper endorsement to the Foraker candidates for federal offices in Allen county.

All the nominations for postoffices in Allen county, made at the instance of the Foraker people have been hung up. Not one commission has been issued and it is now extremely doubtful if they will be unless there is a strong endorsement of the county committee behind them. The old committee being legislated out of office, and now an important thing, can give no aid to them. So the idea has been conceived of having the old committee do one more act before its final dissolution, and thereby give the Forakerites a new lease of life.

But the Hanna combination is aware of the scheme that is hatching, and will endeavor to circumvent it when the proper time comes.

THE ROUSCUP MEETING.

Great Interest Being Taken in a Revival Meeting—Great Crowds in Attendance.

The interest in the revival meetings being held in the country south of the city, by evangelist Clarence Mitchell, increases each night. Last night over two hundred were outside the building, unable to get in, yet endeavoring to listen to the services from the outside. An effort is being made to secure a large tent and carry on the meeting. In nine nights there have been forty-two additions, including infidels and all classes. The meeting was started where there was no church and few Christian people to assist. Lots have been donated for a church building and some are contemplating a building in South Lima. People drive out from Lima to these services and some have made the good confession.

A Four-and-a-Half-Year-Old Girl Badly Cuts Her Eye.

Frances Taylor, the four-and-a-half-year-old daughter of Mr. Taylor, of Jackson Center, is in the city having her eye cared for by Dr. Van Note.

Monday evening the little child was given a penknife by its papa to play with. She had it only a short time when she began to cry. She was picked up by her father, who was surprised to find that her eye had been badly cut. She was brought here Tuesday to have it saved if possible. The cornea and iris were badly cut and the crystalline lens was also injured. The eye probably will be saved, but she will not be able with that eye to distinguish objects.

At 5:30 O'Clock yesterday Afternoon—The Schnabel-Maguire Wedding—Many Other Happy Events Yesterday and To-Day.

The marriage yesterday of Mr. Walter J. Richie and Miss Ethel Eaton was in the nature of a surprise to many of their friends, and was a quiet, homelike affair, only their immediate relatives being present.

The bride, a stately young woman, was as fair as a picture in a gown of white mousseline de soie over white silk and wore a single white rosebud in her hair. The parlor was filled with the beauty and fragrance of the meteor and pearl roses, which were used in connection with similar to decorate each nook and corner. The dining room was a bower of similar and handsome bridesmaid roses, and the table, with its fourteen covers, was beautifully laid. The dinner was as follows:

Onion Soup, Sliced Tomatoes, Soft-Shell Crabs, Olives, Green Peas, Spring Chickens, Creamed Potatoes, Orange Baskets, Cucumber Salad, Water, Bride's Cake, Sautéed Peanuts, Ice Cream, Strawberry, Fruit Cake, Coffee.

No prettier bridal has been blessed this month than the one occurring at the home of the bride's father, Mr. Elsie J. Maguire, of west High street, at high noon yesterday. The day was a charming one and all hearts were filled with sunshine and happiness. The blinding words which made Mr. George Elsworth Schnabel and Miss Mary Given Maguire husband and wife were said by Mr. Wm. Mowen, justice of the peace, and then followed the good wishes of the thirty relatives and dear friends who had witnessed the ceremony. The bride was dainty and sweet in a pretty dress of white Persian lawn. The tables were decked with June's sweetest roses of various hues, and this delicious breakfast served:

Sliced Ham, Lettuce, Macaroni, Pickles, Chicken Salad, Fruit Gelatine, Bread and Butter, Strawberries, Sautéed Peanuts, Ice Cream, Devil's Food, Coffee, Angel Food.
